PORTSMOUTH, Va., Ang. 18, 1851.

Mr. J. E. BOUSH—Sir: While I am in general opposition to Patent Medicines, candor compels me to state that I have great confidence in the virtues of HAMPTON'S VEGETABLE TINCTURE. For several months past I have used it in my family, and in dispepsia, loss of appetite, dizziness and general debility, with entire success. So far as my experience extends, therefore, I take pleasure in recommending it to the afflicted, as a safe and efficient remedy.

Great Cure of Rheumatism by Hampton's Vegetable Tincture:

CHESTER DISTRICT, S. C., January 3d, 1873.

MESSRS. MORTIMER & MOWBRAY—Gentlemen: For the last five years I have been a severe sufferer from Rheumatism, till seeing your recommendation of Hampton's Vegetable Tincture," I purchased a bottle, and the first dose has so much relieved me that I consider it but justice to give to the suffering world the result of the application.

I consider it but justice to give to the suffering world the result of the application

Mine was Acute Rheumatism in the back—so bad that I was confined to my bed for the last six months. The first bottle acted like a charm; the second restored strength to my poor afflicted back, and am now as well and feel as young as when I was sixteen. I am now seventy-four years of age.

I consider your Tincture the greatest discovery of the age; and poor suffering humanity ought to erect a monument to Dr. Hampton, who has saved thousands from pain. And you, gentlemen, have acted the part of public benefactors in disseminating the benefits which have resulted from your invaluable remedy.

I am a plain cotton planter, and have never written for litera I am a plain cotton planter, and have never written for literary tame; but when my fellow beings are afflicted, shall I hesitate, or through modesty, withhold any information valuable to my fellow man? So, if you consider this worthy of a place in any of your newspapers, you are at liberty to make use of it.

Yours, truly,

ALVAH KEMBALL.

An Original Love Story. He struggled to kiss her. She struggled the same To prevent him, so bold and undaunted; But as smitten by lightning, he heard her exclaim, "Avaunt sir," and off he avaunted.

But when he returned, with the fiendishest laugh, And threatened by main force to carry her off, She cried "Don't!" and the poor follow donted. When he meekly approached, and got down at her feet,
Praying loud, as before he had ranted,
That she would forgive him, and try to be sweet,
And said "Can't you?"—the dear girl recanted.

Then softly he whispered—"How could you do so.
I certainly thought I was jilted,
But come thou with me, to the parson we'll go:
Say, wilt thou my dear?" and she wilted. Then gaily he took her to see her new home— A shanty by no means enchanted— See! here we can live with no longer to roam," He said, "Shan't we, my dear?" So they shanted!

Clearing and preparing New Lands. The following article was read before the Agricultural Society at the Parlington Mineral Spring, on the 28th of February. We copy from the Darlington (S. C.) Flag.

Clearing land will embrace almost as many different modes as there are different qualities of land or varieties of soil; therefore it cannot be fully compre hended under one general head. But as our country abounds in what is called high pine land, our remarks will be principally confined to that class.

We would recommend, in the first place, that the

E. D. Law, Chairman. Our friend of the Albany Register carries his eyes in his head as he walks the streets of that quiet village, and relates many curious and amusing incidents. Sometimes we suspect him of great inventive faculties; but the following story of an April joke is as good as any we have seen: "Speaking of the beginning of April, will anybody tel! us where the custom came from which makes everybody try to fool everybody on the first day of that capricious month? We saw a funny thing on the first day of April down in Green street. Did anybody ever see anybody pass by an old hat on the side walk without giving it a kick? We do not believe such a thing ever happened. Well, a wag seized upon this characteristic out of which to make a little amusement on "all fools-day." So he procured a boulder, weighing some twenty pounds or more, and, laying it upon the side-walk, placed over it an ancient weather beaten hat. The first person who passed that way was a jolly, rollicking young man, who went whistling "Jordan is a hard road to travel," and as he came opposite the hat, placed so temptingly in his way, he gave it a rousing kick, expecting of course to see it go skiving into the middle ofthe street. But it didn't move, and the kicker picked up his toe in both hands, and hopped about, and became emphatic in his language, in a manner dozen or more assaults perpetrated upon that old hat ality. that concealed the boulder, and every time the attacking party got the worst of the bargain.

concerning the Ward verdict, is becoming involved to an extent threatening more shooting or something else. The Journal gave this delicate thrust yerterday: "Perhaps the editor of the Courier, who professes to be great upon statistics, would gratify his admirers, if there are such things, by giving them statisties of the amount of business transacted on the Ohio undergound railroads during his dictatorship."

To this insinuation Mr. Gallagher has made a personal reply, closing thus: "Any and every such insinuation or imputation, no matter by whom made, or when or where, being false and caluminous, it is proper for me to say to George D. Prentice, the principal editor of the Louisville Journal, that if in anything he has heretofore written upon this subject, or anything he may hereafter write upon it, he has meant or may mean to connect me in any form with the escape of fugitives from this or any other slave State into Ohio or any other free State, he has uttered, or will utter, a base lie and a calumny. PREPARATIONS FOR REBUILDING THE WHEELING BRIDGE .- The Intelligencer, of Friday, says : We are gratified to announce that the Bridge Company, at a meeting held yesterday, resolved to replace the bridge which has just been destroyed, at the earliest day practicable, and appointed a committee to report, with all possible despatch, the measures necessary to be taken for the accomplishment of the work. In this prompt action there is a wisdom and determination which cannot but lead to the most favorable results which our citizens, and the vast interests abroad, with which this subject is dentified, could require. Most all the wreck of the Bridge which was lying n the river, has been dragged ashore, except the cables which are hanging over the towers and extending across the bottom of the river. The river is now unobstructed by the wreck.

The Nebraska Bill a Practical Question.

There seems to be considerable difference of opinion as to whether the repeal of the Missouri Compromise has any immediate, practical value, apart from the assertion of a principle, and the balance of opinion appears to lean to the negative. Most people think it has not,-that slavery will not go there, at any rate. We must confess that such has been our own opinion, and is so yet, to some extent; yet, we cannot see why original "Nebraska" has been divided into two teritories, and although the Northern portion, to which he name of Nebraska still pertains, is almost cerain to become a non-slaveholding State, there is no ach certainty about the Southern or Kansas portion. The last census shows that one fourth of all the slaves in the Union are North of 36 degrees 30 minutes, which certainly goes far to disprove the assertion that slavery cannot exist North of that line .--Tobacco and hemp are the staples, to the production of which Kansas is peculiarly adapted. They must either mean this, or their objections to the Resolution are founded solely in party feeling. This journal has been and will continue to be the advocate of internal improvements; and we are in favor of completing the present works, and of extending the North Carolina Railroad eastward to Beaufort and westward to some point on the Tennessee line; and this Resolution embodies all we could desire on the subject. We stand upon it; and we declare our settled conviction, after a careful examination of the two Resolutions, that it is a better and a safer Resolution every way for the cause of in- sue quietly and in patient silence. Now, what does this amount to? Why, simply that the Whig Convention was in favor, as every one to be alarmed, but suggest that each man so live that is, of a liberal system of internal improvements; and whatever happens, he may meet it with courage.it "recommends" the extension east and west to the 'favorable consideration of the next Legislature." Who cannot do that? As a matter of the commonest provements-could recommend a work to the 'favorable consideration' of the Assembly. There can be no harm and no risk, probably, in considering. Now mark the difference : the Democrats boldly take the ground that it would be politic and proper for the Legislature to complete the works now in progress and to extend the same, which extension of course refers "recommends" these extensions to "the favorable provements. Mr. Bragg is in favor of these works, but he is not prepared to lose sight of the means and the ability of the people to construct and pay for them. He would prefer no doubt, to see the present Nebraska Bill as it came from the House by the following vote:

ATTEMPT TO SINK VESSELS .- A letter from Valparaiso, under date of April 14, says:

Of late several shameful crimes have been committed on board vessels sailing from this port. No less than four vessels have been found leaking badly, after getting a few days out to sea, and on putting into port it has been discovered that their bottoms had een deliberately and maliciously bored through and through with an auger. A Chilian vessel, the Virginia, not many weeks ago, sailed from Montevideo with a cargo of flour. She put into Chiloe, at the South, and had eight auger holes in her bottom. The voyage has in consequence, been broken up. Day pefore yesterday, also, an American ship, the Emily Taylor, whaler of New Bedford, with a full cargo of oil, returned in a similar condition. She for a whole year has been tryig to get home, and hindered by one difficulty after another; and now this one has come added to all the rest. Many of the men were in irons when she came in; and the Consul went at once on board to form a statement of the case. It appears to be a crime of the same nature as arson,

Unless the present cause be singularly mismanaged, we resolve to put forth our whole strength, and to act as it disposes of its subject, has a peculiar significance. with consumate vigor on a grand scale, we ought to We republish it: terminate the war with success and honor in a couple of campaigns. If, either from our own choice or Russia's policy, we adopt a slower and more languid line of action, our ordinary military and naval expenses ought not to be very greatly enhanced, nor ought our commerce to suffer any very extensive interruption. If the war becomes in any degree chronic, trade will gradually accommodate itself to the new condition of things, and modify its machinery and its channels. Its power of pliancy in this respect is reremarkable. As we clothed the troops of Napoleon in the hottest period of the last war, in spite of his Berlin and Milan decrees, it is not improbable that, if necessary, Russia will help to feed our men and to rig our ships in the present war. For a slow war, too, ten millions in addition to our usual defensive expenditure will probably suffice. Fifteen millions should be ample. Now, no one who looks deliberately at the comparative or the absolute resources of Great Britain-at her wealth in Pitt's time and at her wealth now-or at the vast sums which for years we have been expending in railways and foreign loans need feel much anxiety at any inconvenience which this comparatively small amount of annual increment will cause us. The probability is, that if judiciously raised, it would scarcely be felt as a burden at all -It would simply cause a smaller expenditure in other ways-a postponement of some undertakings in which the enterprise of the nation would otherwise have overflowed. Never were we in so flourishing or so capable a condition of entering on a costly struggle The population of the country has doubled since the middle of the last war; its wealth has probably at least quadrupled; its productive power has increased in a still greater ratio; while its naval and military expenditure will certainly (per annum) not exceed one-half—except on the supposition of the war being a gigantic and therefore a brief one. A state of hostilities which our ancestors found a grievous burden may thus be to us a very insignificant one. Then, gress. It may be overruled at any time. It gives us no security. But the constitution is stable. It is a rock. On it we can stand, and on it we can meet our friends from the nonslaveholding States. It is a firm and stable ground, on which we can better stand in opposition to fanaticism than on the shifting sands of compromise. Let us be done with compromises. Let us go back and stand upon the constitution."-John O. Calhoun.

Big Words .- A fashionable lady in Buffalo, N. Y once said to a friend:

Philanthropy and Patriotism in Boston. Among the crowded columns of intelligence from the city of Boston, with which the Northern journals it should either be a short one or a cheap one. If teem, there is one small paragraph, which, summarily

> The funeral of James Batchelder, the United States officer who was killed in the slave riot, took place from Charleston, Sunday afternoon. There were but few persons present except the immediate friends of the family. What a commentary is that upon the false humanity which is making such a stir in Boston! What an illustration of the treason to the Constitution, which, either open, or concealed, is so wide spread in that either open, or concealed, is so wide spread in that city! Suppose the runaway had been killed instead of Batchelder,—suppose any of the rioters had fallen, what an outery of wrath and lamentation would have been raised over men who fell in resisting the law of the land! The bells would have been tolled, the funeral procession would have been attended by thousands, and the rebels and disorganizers, whose death was the result of their own clime, would have been availed into markers.

But when a worthy of the rioters had fallen, which restored my health, healed my ankle, and I am free from swelling than for the last thirty years.

But when a worthy citizens, an officer of the law, dies in the performance of his duty to his country, a death than which none can be more honorable and glorious in the sight of God and man, he is left to be shovelled into the earth of the first of th and with scarce a human being to follow him to his grave, save the members of his own humble house-hold. This is a striking exhibition of the real humanity and patriotism prevailing in the city of Boston. Actions speak louder than words. Boston may redeem herself by anihilating the gang of assassins and rebels who are now in arms against the law: but if her heart had been in the right place, the officer of the United States, who fell in the discharge of his duty, would have been followed to his grave by a great multitude of the "solid men of Boston," who would have availed themselves of the opportunity to exhibit their respect for the law, their hatred of treason, and their humane sympathies with a man deserving of sympathy, and who died in the discharge of his duty. VISIT HARRISON'S VS. WHITEHURST'S WILMINGTON GALLERY.

What treasures of art does this little room contain?—
Whichever way you turn, some immortal creation greet your eye. Here you can linger profitably for hours contemplating the noblest of God's creation—man; here converse silently with the living and the dead, until the withered arm of memory seems again restored and strength ened, and reaches forth its hand to greet those with whom we were once intimately associated, but now inhabit the gloomy prison house of forgetfulness. Who would die with out leaving so desirable a token of remembrance behind? Here beauty, with its diversity of expression and features, glows forth from the plate with rapturous divinity, and tascinates the eye, until the heart worships them, not like the inimitable virginly Angels, the sainted Madonna, or the blue-bearded Magdalene, but as the unapproachable Daguerreotypes of relatives and friends, made by Harrison.

EVERITTSVILLE FEMALE ACADEMY.

J. D. CAMPBELL, A. M., Principal, Assisted by competent assistants.

THE NEXT SESSION of this School will commence on Monday, the 19th of June, and close on the 17th of No-

Everittsville is a pleasant village, situated in Wayne county, N. C., immediately on the Wilmington and Weldon Rail Road, 78 miles from the former place. It is probably as healthy a place as can be found in the State. The society is good; and yet there is less to distract the minds of girls from their books than in almost any other village. The moral and religious character of the citezens, and the entire freedom from dissipation of every sort, should be an inducement to parents to send their daughters to this place. We endeavor thoroughly to instruct those committed to our care, in every branch necessary to a finished Female Education.

For English Course from $10 to $15
Ancient and Modern Languages, each 5
Music, with use of Instrument 50 cents the close of the Session, except in cases of protracted sick-

Board, including all necessaries, can be had in the family of the Principal, and elsewhere in the village at from $7 $8 per month.
